THE OLD FAMILIAR FACES.

By CHARLES LAMB.

Charles Lamb was bern in London in 1775, and died there in 1834. He was the son of an altorney's clerk. His fame probably rests upon his essays and upon his joint authors with the state of the probably rests upon his essays and upon his joint authors with the definition of character, and his poetic aspirations are said to have meen solely to turn out verses such as Elizabeth, and poets like Ben Johnson or Beauthout and Fletcher might have written. In fact, he was such an idolated of antiques of all kinds that he lived in the past, as far as possible, deriving little pleasure from both of the probable of the probable of the probable of the probable of the london. He cared nothing for society, possibly because of the probable of the superior of the superior of the possible possible possible possible probable of the superior many state of the probable o

In my days of childhood, in my joyful school-days All, all are gone, the old familiar faces.

I have been laughing. I have been carousing Drinking late, sitting late, with my bosom cronics; All, all are gone, the old familiar faces.

I loved a love once, fairest among women; All, all are gone, the old familiar faces.

I have a friend, a kinder friend has no man; Like an ingrate, I left my friend abruptly; Left him, to muse on the old familiar faces,

Ghost-like I paced round the haunts of my childhood Earth seemed a desert I was bound to traverse. Socking to find the old familiar faces.

Why wert not thou born in my father's dwelling? So might we talk of the old familiar faces-

And some are taken from me; all are departed; All, all are gone, the old familiar faces.

Building Nearly Complete.

The Virginia building at the Exposition, a reproduction of Monticello, the beautiful home of Jefferson, is now ubout completed and will be ready for occupancy and the work of fitting it up within a few days. The site for the Monticello building is the most advantageous of any State building on the grounds. Capitain W. W. Baker, one of the commissioners, succeeding in obtaining from the World's Fair management a contral location in a beautiful natural grove and on the highest point in the Exposition grounds and closely contiguous to the great biffidings of the Exposition, it required some negotiations and much consultation to secure such a choice spet, but Capitain Baker would not submit to having this State's display pigeon-holed or located in some remote spot. The building will be of suff composition, the material of which all the Exposition structures are built, and it will be a reproduction in color of its prototyps which crown the mountain overlooking Charlottesville.

Will Make Four Displays.

This State will make four displays. The first is to be of apples and other fruits and will be one of the largest and most creditable in the great horticulture building in Virginia's space therein. The commissioners are particularly proud of the fruit exhibit, showing the vast possibilities of the orchard industry in this State, an industry now in its infancy. In variety, standard and quantity this will equal the exhibit of any State in the Union.

In short it will include fine specimens of everything grown in Virginia, and embracing some prize winning products. Special Tobacco Exhibit.

Special Tobacco Exhibit.

In connection with this exhibit there will be a special tobacco exhibit to the collection of which Captain O. W. Stone, assistant commissioner, has devoted much work and thought with highly satisfactory results. The tobacco exhibit will occupy a space of 30 by 45 feet, and will be unique and attractive in design as it is representative of the various graces and colors of tobacco grown in this State. The tobacco exhibit will be surmounted by a life-size effigy of Pocahentas, constructed wholly of tobacco, and standing full height upon a globe incitus, constructed wholly of tobacco, and standing full height upon a globe representing the world, which in turn rests upon a pedestal of obacco. The figure of Pocahontas is designed from drawings by W. I. Sheppard, the famous Virginia artist, and promises to be as beautiful and symmetrical as it is unique and appropriate. In the exhibit there will be specimens of all grades and shades of tobacco from the bright lemon wrappers to the black heavy Austrian and Italian shipping grades. It will include some of the finest specimens of leaf tobacco ever grown in this State, brights, dark leaf, shipping and sundark leaf, shipping and suncured. Besides the leaf exhibit there will be displays of manufactured tobacco in its various forms, several large manufacturing firms contributing. The R. A. Patterson Tobacco Company, of this city, will have a miniature manufacturing plant on the grounds, showing the processes of making the finished product. Sparrow and Gravely, of Martinsville, and the P. B. Gravely Tobacco Company, of Martinsville; will also make special exhibits of manufactured goods. cured. Besides the leaf exhibit there
